'Not Forgetting James Bond' is the autobiography of Syd Cain, one of cinema's most highly acclaimed Production Designers and Art Directors. This is a mesmerising volume filled with humour, drama and exotic travel, and never before told accolades about the legendary people Syd worked with during his 57 years in the film industry.

He recalls extraordinary revelations about making such films as Frenzy, The Wild Geese, Lolita, Shout at the Dead, Gold, A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Fahrenheit 451, and of course the James Bond classics: Dr. No, From Russia With Love, On Her Majesty's Secret Service, Live and Let Die and GoldenEye.

This book has been unavailable for several years, but MI6 has secured a batch of original first edition hardbacks signed by the late Syd Cain in 2002. He passed away in 2011 at the age of 93.

The rare autobiography is a hard-to-come-by classic, and is signed by the late legendary production designer, shipping today for £60 + P&P from www.sydcain.com.
